

DREAM OF CHAMPIONS

BY BROD BAGERT

The whole wide world was watching,
they were watching on TV.
In one corner—Corona Kong.
In the other corner—ME!

And yes, I was a little scared,
Corona Kong looked tough,
but I knew what I had to do because enough's enough.

I put him in a headlock...
I flipped him in the air...
But Corona Kong charged back at me and tried to pull my hair.

So I grabbed him by the ankles,
my hands like iron jaws.
Then I spun like a human tornado and launched him off to Mars.

The whole world saw it happen,
they saw it on TV.
Oh-yea, Corona Kong was tough
but not as tough as me.
