

IF WE DON'T WATCH OUT!

by Brod Bagert

We fly airplanes over oceans, we ride rockets into space, we can call-up friends across the world and see them face-to-face.

With computers, cars, and satellites, we live a life of ease,
yet a tiny-little virus-thing has brought us to our knees.

We may still live by the principle that our spirit is invincible; it's a thing I think we humans never doubt.
But, though life may seem enchanted, we can't take it all for granted,
'cause the tiny things will get us
